Music producer Hal Willner occupied a unique place in American music. He was known for his unique concept albums where he'd gather together an eclectic selection of musicians to play in somewhat unlikely scenarios. He also provided many years of music direction for Saturday Night Live.

Hal Willner passed away just over a year ago – on April 7, 2020 – from complications due to COVID-19. He and John Prine died from the coronavirus on the same day.

Tonight on Box of Visions, we pay tribute to Hal Willner. We'll hear music from his many concept album projects and from individual artists that he produced.

It's an honor to call more attention to him and his work. The list of artists who worked with him consistently over the years include Marianne Faithfull, Bill Frisell, Lou Reed, Laurie Anderson, Nick Cave, and Carla Bley. His quiet but enormous influence on modern music is deeply missed.

Box of Visions streams Monday nights at 8 MDT on Radio Rethink 's Channel One.
